Last week every good voter in the towns and cities of Kentucky registered. Under the law, which is one of the things the Democratic ring depends on to keep it in power against the will of the people; he got from the registration officer a certificate which gives him a right to vote. This arrangement is made, not to benefit the Democratic party, but the ring, which now controls it.

THE CRIMINAL REGISTRATION LAW.

One of the most necessary laws in a free country is the one which prevents a man's selling his vote. If it were not for this law a man who once got a chance to steal from the people could buy up votes with the stolen money and so keep himself in power. This does not mean that the majority of men would sell their votes, but that it takes a very few to decide a contest either way only when the two sides are about evenly divided.

The Kentucky law provides a penalty for selling your vote, but the men who passed the registration law took pains to leave it without any penalty for the selling of the registration certificate, which gives anyone a right to vote. This was so that the democratic ring-they were the people, who passed the law, and they surely passed it for their own benefit—could buy up the votes of ignorant people, largely black, without risking any punishment for it. They knew what they were doing, for honest men who happened to be in the senate when the law was passed told them that they were making an arrangement that would encourage the crime of vote buying, and begged them to stop it, and they laughed at them. They were speaking for the people that time, and it was the people that the ring laughed at. And the people are you, and your friends, and your neighbors.

The question now is whether the man who voted for a law to make crime easy shall profit by the crime they have encouraged, or whether there are enough honest men in the state enough men who would rather lose honestly than win by theft to defeat them. Some honest men get so twisted by the heat of a political campaign that they seem to think that anything, fair or foul, which hurts the other side, is all right. Such men manage to approve the persecution of an innocent man for political purposes, and such men will vote for men who have helped commit the worst of all crimes against American liberty who have helped make the name of our great state a byword.

But non who can see straight even in politics will see that ctime is crime, even when committed for their side, and will know that it will do no party good in the cird to be known as one led by criminals. and they will turn in with the men who are politically opposed to he present administration, and drive the crime makers cut of office.

Judge J. S. Morris to Try Caleb Powers.-Rev. P. H. Fleld Prohibition Candidate for Lleutenant Governor.

Gov. Beckham Wednesday appointed Judge J. S. Morrls, of Oidham County, as special Judge of the Scett Circuit Court to preside in the fourth. trial of Caleb Powers on the charge of conspiracy la the Gobel murder case. Judge Morris was a member of the last General Assembly, and served for years as Commonwealth's Attorney of the Oldham-Shelby district.

The indictment of Mrs. Jenuie Gentry ia connection with the alleged atstempt of Caleb Fowers to bribe convicts to swear that Henry E. The Coward. As she left me I again caught the look of wonder, a resentful wonder, a curiosity that was even harsh and i scated myacif opposite the woman I had unconsciously wroaged. Fer tho tirst time she looked at me, and I saw with relief that neither pain ner anguish lurked in her clear eyes. Thero was no outraged love nor tenderness. Nor was there pity for herself or for me. But even so, it seemed to me pathetic that a woman should be so strong.

"I wish to hear everything. Begin, please, with your first meeting with Mr. Willoughhy. Tell me ail-to the last moment."

"i shall not spare either yourself or myself," I promised.

"Did you know Mr. Willoughhy intimately? Were you at Oxford with speaking of you."

She spoke slowly, with a certain aloofaess. A desire to he just struggled with a manifest dislike-a dislike of the glaciers; we had reached the that was evidently not lessened hecause of my studied calm. Perhaps she thought a fervent expression of penitence more fitting. But instinct-Ively I knew that an hysterical repentance would increase her contempt for me. I preferred her batred to that. And so I told my story absolutely without feeling.

"I met him for the first time the night hefore his death."

"Indeed!" Her voice trembled with anger. She was indignant that ho should bave discussed his love with an utter stranger.

"It was not until we had both given up hope that he mentioned you, Miss Brett." I said with some sternness.

"But surely his death was the result of a quite unexpected accident? The newspapers gave one that impression," she exclaiméd suspiciously. The words and the look accused me of falsehood.

"The accident came only after we were both utterly exhausted by the sufferings of a night spent on the mountain paths."

"And were the newspapers correct m saying that you were not an experienced mountain climber? And did Mr. Willoughby know that?'

"Yes, I am simply a tourist. This is the first time I have been in Europe. I came to Switzerland as thousands of others come-to see the mountains from an hotel plazza or a rallway train. To me, as to most teurists, the Aips wero simply a gigantic panorama to be viewed coarplaisantly, as one looks at Niagara Fails. To climb them never occurred to me until I met Mr. Willoughby.

"I was making the usual circular tour, Interlaken, Scheidegg, Lauterhrunnen, Grindelwald. Mr. Willoughhy happened to sit next to me at the tablo d'hote at the Bear hotel. He was an athlete; Switzerland to him was simply an immense playground; he spoke of the trophies he had won at Queen's fields in the same breath as his exploits in scaling a mountain top. At first I listened to him with indiffereace; his enthusiasm annused menothing more. I had supposed that people climbed mountains simply for the view; heeanse on the summit ono eould see a little farther than if one were merely on the mountain-side. But as he talked I hegan to understand. It was a game-a conflict-a battle if you wish-in which one pitted one's streagth and wit in a hand-tohand fight with nature.

"Gradually his enthusiasm aroused mine. I was wearied of sight-seeing; the horde of tourists disgusted me. Before we had finished our cigars I loaged to pluck my first edelwelss; to play this new game myself. I hinted laughed at them. I was presnmptuous enough to think that where he led I might follow."

"The usual mistake of the tourist, I believe," commented Miss Brett, coldgo with him on his next elimh?"

"At least I was willing enough to do confess that the word 'pass' did not sound especially formidable, for he declared that guides were not at all necessary. So I agreed to make the ascent with him. I did not realize that mountain climbing, more than any other sport, required arduous training. "The next morning at 11 o'clock we atarted from Grindelwald. Wo were provided with the customary paraphernalia of the Alpine elimher; hut our elimh to the Schwarzegg Cluh Hut, nt the Upper Ice-fall, where we were to spend the night, might have been made with waiking sticks instead of alpenstocks. It was for the most part a simple path over glassy slopes on the eastern side of the Lower Grindelwald Glacier-a bypath winding along the cliffs.

"We were aroused the next morning relieved when two guides, who were weather and warned us that it would snow louched my cheek.

He assured me that the protests of the guides was a clumsy attempt to frighten us into engaging their services. They were waiting for us; it was the usual trick. I necepted his explanation as plausible enough. I was unwilling to disappoint him now

CHAPTER V.

A Life for a Life.

A long slience fell between us. 1 looked where the little beacon light had flickered feebly a few moments before. It had gone out. With an offort, I sought the face of the girl who | question is asked by thousands of persat opposite me.

looked at me as if i were n heing apart, of another world. Ity my own confession I had shut myself out of ferrybosts. "I do not know its exact her world. The min who hail loved height," said the man aildressed, "but her lovally had died as the strong people of her race had died. That proud fact supported her. For her I existed that hullding would make it entirely no longer. She gathered her skirts possible for the sun to shine on the about her. She inclined iter head slightly. She was going out of my life. She had uttered uo spoken reproach. But her look, her every movement, echoed the verdict of the man who was dead.

I pushed hack my chair. Thank Ileaven, the ordeal was over; that was my first thought. Then I hesttated. Suddenly I longed to make this woman understand.

When others had pointed the finger of scorn I had refused to be erushed, hecause I helieved their censure upjust. I laid grown almost indifferent as to whether people despised me or not. But this was the first woman to whom I had spoken since the tragedy. liad she loved Willoughby, it would have been hopeless to expect any sympathy from her. She would have felt toward me a lifelong hatred.

But she did not love Willoughhy. It was merely a sense of duty that had urged her to seek from mo my story. Perhaps sho wished to tell it to his hereaved parents. It was to be a sort of reparation owed to the memory of tho man who had loved her.

She had judged me without emo tion, without passion. She had spokes no words of reproach or anger. She was leaving mo in allence But 1 knew that the silence of this woman would haunt me as no spoken word of bitterness ever could. It was & Mlence that would irritate and madden with the eeming years. It was hopeless to lauke hor understand, to expect one word of sympathy. But al least she should speak, though 't were in anger. I lonned toward her; there was a certain prule in my humility. (TO BE CONTINUED)

MOST TERRIBLE OF DEATHS.

Spider's Bite Probably the Worst Known to Scientists.

What is the most terrible death in the world? The following are a few of the most terrible known to martni mnn, but as to which of those given is the worst it would probably be hard to may.

One of the most agonizing deaths known is caused by a small black Willoughhy was nuxlous now. And spider half the size of a pea. It lives and America in ship loads of lumber. Not long ngo a dock inborer while nnloading a vessel in the Victoria docks felt one upon his hand. This deathdenter dog its fangs deep into the man's flesh, and as soon as the poison began to work he fainted with pain He was dead in three days. This Spider's venom scorchea up the blood vessels and spreads through all the tissues, causing the most fearful agony a human being can have to bear. The worst of it is that the victim lives at least two days. The spider is generally known as the "specky" When a man who knows what the generally blows out his brains.

Another fearful death is caused by eating a grain called "bhat." This sometimes gets mixed with rice, which it resembles. The plant grows in the drive a person into a state of violent pieces with his fingers and bites mouthfuls out of his tlesh This grain and ice, it seemed impossible-for me, is found only in the remotest parts of the east, but both white men and to tell you how desperate that chaace natives are killed by it occasionally, for the plant grows in with the rice "Generous to the last, be insisted crops, and there is no way of telling that i go first. The rope was fastened them apart, except when the grain is about my waist; I climbed down the dried it comes out in a sort of brickred color.

There is a South American plant, or vine, called the 'knotter," which fastens about any living thing that comes within reach, twining its long tentacles about a man as a devillish might. These tentacles sear and burn into the flesh like white hot wirea, and the victim is drag od hato the heart of the foliage, and his life slowly drained as the spider sucks the blood of the tly. Those who have strong instincts of crucity, sometlanes force a dog or other animal into the grip of the 'knotter" to watch the effects, which are too horrible to describe in detail.

Child Misunderstood.

When Lord Elphiston was in America a couple of years ago he was entertained at dinner by a family the head of which was to accompany his fordship on his hunting trip through the wilds of the northwest. A child of about five years, named Ethel, during the dinner was big eyed and bigcared with wonderment in fact, compictely overawed by the prescace of the distinguished foreigner Ethel heard her mother and father now and then say, "My lord this, and my lord that," or "Will you have some of this, my lord, or some of that" the dinner being a purely informal one Finally, noticed that inflord was gazing interestedly at a dish of relish quite out of his reach. The child thought she saw a chance to please Lord Elphiston, and in a tirm, clear voice, exclaimed 'Mama, God wants some pickles"-San Francisco Argonnut.

How Bears Play.

In a recently published work a naturalist gives some interesting facts coacerning the playtime of animals. The bear is supposed by many to be a rather solemn nulmai, but he is given to pranks at times, and even indulges in antics that closely resemble games played by ehlidren. The naturalist observed three cahs repeatedly playing a game very much like tag. A cuh would chase the others, until he euffed one with his paw; then the one hit took up the chase. It mny be that the writer's imagination put more system into the plny than actually was there. llowever, hears in zoological gardens have been known to turn somersaults, and they take to dancing so readily that it is easy to train them to take certnin in a recent issue of the London Temperance thronicle it is stated that drinking in India is decidedly on the increase, and that this increased coaammption is largely due to greater indulgence in intoxicants by the native population. It is shown from recent returns that the revenue from intoxicating ilquors consumed in india has risen from £5,476,000 in 1903, to £6,-510,000 in 1906. Of the entire popula tion of 294 361,000, the European element is estimated as 190,000, and of this number 70,000 are soldiers of the European army who must, in view of climatic and other conditions, be considered of generally sober habits. Exempting 25,000 more as the wives and daughters of soldiers and civilians who may fairly be considered to use but little alcohol, there remains in all phont 100,000 Europeans, who are chiefly engaged in conducting civic affairs of the empire, and who are persons of education, and little prone to excess, which in that country involves its own swift and complete retribution. The itoval Army Temperance association branch in India has a membership of 29,300, or nearly three sevenths of the whole European aimy. Result of Temperance Wave. The temperance wave which is passing over western Europe has been the principal cause of the difficulties which now benet the French growers. We mnat go back to 1876 to find a cropthat equaled in abundance that of 1906 Wine, as a result, became so cheap that the railways demanded more for earrying a ton, say, from Benziers or Perpigran to Bordeaux, than it would sell for in the lastwhen the mother was interested in the named town. To make matters worse, conversation of another guest, 12thel the consumption has decreased in most European countries in France itself, the greatest vene-drinking country in the world, the use of mineral waters has grown enormously within the last few years It is now freely admitted that these b verages are serious competitors with homegrown wines. Again, a large number of artificial wines have recently been placed upon the market, and they have hit the public taste, although they are not aestly so wholesome or nutritions as the genuine juice of the wine All these things have combined to injure the grower, and to bring distress upon bim in the midst of plenty.

DRINKING IN INDIA.

Use of Alcoholic Beverages Said to Be on the increase.

The Canteen Question.

As the question of the canteen in the United States army is likely to be resurrected during the coming winter, the clear, unblased presentation of the problem by as distinguished a military leader as itrig. Gen. A. S. Daggett, is opportune. Gen. Progress in Florida.

tiov. Itrownrd, of the state of Florida, is noted as nn advocate of state prohibition of the liquor trame. A Prohibition amendment was narrowly defeated in the state legislature recently, being favored by 35 ont of the 42 votes necessary for the enactment. The vigorous campaign earried on by temperance forces of this state has placed it in the forefront of the states enacting ugainst the drink traffic. County local option has been secured in 27 out of the 45 countles of the state.

Drink Taxation in Great Britain. According to a recent statement of the chancellor of the exchequer, the average taxation per hend in Great firitain for alcoholic drink and licenses is approximately 17s 7d on an estintated population of 43,613,00. Vacations Necessary to High-Pressure Rusiness

By CAPT. R. G. F. CANDAGE, Marine Surveyor.

FTY or more years ago our fathers labored from dawn to dusk, in many employments, to gain a livelihood and to accomplish what can now be better done in half the time, and day are in active business frequently untit they reach threescore and ten, and even fourscore.

In that earlier period there were few labor-saving appliances as compared with the present, such as improved machinery of every kind, factories, railroads, telegraphs, telephones and electrical appliances. Steamships now cross the ocean and circumnavigate the globe in a quarter of the time it took to do it in the old sailing ship, and carry the cargoes and passengers of a dozen of the largest ships dependent upon the wind for propulsion.

These changes have enabled the business man and his employes to concentrate their energies, so as to hurry their goods and wares to and from their shops and warehouses in a quarter of the time formerly needed, first having made arrangements to do so from the counting room or office, through the telegraph or telephone. The electric wires anticipate the arrival of trains, steamships and the mails, and through them cargoes of merchandise are ordered today in China, Iudia, Australia, Europe and the world over, to be sent on their way tomorrow, where formerly months and even years were required.

To keep up in alertness and activity the concentrated efforts emised by the needs of today in business life produces a strain which was unknown to our fathers, and there must be a relaxation and rest, or a breukdown will ensue.

A machine has its limitations, and if kept in constant motion without being stopped for rest, repairs and oilings, it is sure to wear out seoner than under more moderate speed. A human being is in a certain sense a machine of delicate organism, limited to a certain capacity, and if run at high pressure continuously, year in and year out, without rest, Jarred open. relaxation and oiling, will break down in time and cease to be able to turn out the best work, if any.

The stress on brain and mind in business life at the present time is so much greater than in the days of our fathers that it has led to shortening the hours given to business and also to the taking and giving of their victim eroughed behind his cot, vacations, which seem to be needful, and are, in my opinion, helpful to and, selzing him by the feet, where, from cardboard or any other stiff the business community, and not detrimental. The Well-Managed Husband

By HELEN OLDFIELD.

There are some men who were born to be tnanaged by other people, usually some woman, mother or wife, and from their babyhood a henpecked atmosphere hus been the part and portion of their daily lives. All men by no means are able to stand alone. There undeniably are numbers of able men, men of affairs, who in their own homes are figureheads, who pay the bills. But Colorado elty have lived together 60 the women who rule in their stead rarely fail in their own persons, still less do they permit any other to fail, in the full payment of all honor and respect to the nominal head of the house. This personage in no sense whatever is a nonentity,

It often happens that men who are noted for their energy and suecess in business, who are marvels of firmness, not to say obstinacy, in their dealings with other men, are those who are most indulgent, even submissive, to their womenfolk. At home they like to be relieved from his counterfeit presentment exhibited all worry and bother, to be made comfortable without the annoyance of seeing the wheels go round. The woman who knows what such a man wants and sees that he has it; who anticipates his wishes; who manages her household without fuss or friction; who never contradicts or nags; who, in short, makes herself essential to his comfort, generally is allowed to have her own way without let or hindrance so long as she takes care (and she usually does) that that way does not cross or conflict with

It is an amusing paradox that big men physically, Samson and Hercules, frequently are dominated, openly and enndidly, by their wives, who in such cases are little women whom the good humored giants easily could master with one hand. Such a man, with such a wife, reminds the spectator of nothing so much as a big ship in convoy of a little steam tug, puffing and whistling, while the great ship follows in heavy silence. He usually admires his wife for her "smartness" and energy, admits her young to the feast; how a hear at rule, and makes a joke of it; too thoroughly conscious of his own strength to resent her "bossing."

MUSIC-ROLL COVER.

How the Shabby Leather Case Can Be Given New Lesss of Life.

The pretty music roll, which seems so fresh and daluty at the beginning of a term of lessons, soon takes on a certain simbby look if it be carried daily. A new roll every time the old one one begins to show signs of wenr, is out of question for the average schoolgirl, hut with a little ingenuity on her part the old one may be kept a thing of beauty.

A serviceable case was recently admired that had once been of fine leather, and though it looked worn and hattered, the case itself was still strong and good; so its unsightliness was turned into beauty by nn ensity arranged cover of embroldered olive cashiuere and moss green plush, as seen in the Illustration. The ends were decorated with allk cords tled in bows, and similar cords, held in place by large huttons and decorated with plush halls, served as handles.

A more elaborate cover may be ninde of crochet work, but in plauning for this sort of cover it would be best to have the knitting or crechet work in cylinder form so that the roll will simply slip within it, instead of at were careful to guide the lynchers to tempting to form the crochet work to fit the roll, and open at the side.

The Usefulness of the Hedgehog. Persons who are inclined to a feel ing of enmity toward these little sulmais, the hedgehogs, should stop to consider some of their characteristles before condemning them to de struction, for in many ways they are of great usefulness. Gardeners tell us that a hedgehog in the garden will destroy all the rulnous insects that make such ravages on the fresh young vegetables, and the worins, slugs and simils cannot live where the hedgehog has full liberty. in the kitchen and cellar the little animsl is also of great benefit, as he keeps them clear of black beetles and many other annoying insects that are n menace to the good housekeeper.

ROVER TO THE RESCUE.

Brought the Trusnt Bost Back to the Shore.

The children with their big New foundland dog, Itover, lost no time in starting for the sands, the morning after their arrival at the seaside. This was Rover's first visit to the sea; and, to judge by the way he bounded along he evidently meant to enjoy himselt quite as much ies the children did What fun they had, building and dig glug and raving on the sand' Then there was the new bost, the Saucy Polly, to sail, and this was a source of great excitement. And very preity indeed she looked, riding the waves so gracefully, as Harold and Jack in turn, keeping the tow-string well in haml, guided her niong the const.

The morning passed all too soon, and it was narly time to go home to diauer, and Harold was drawlag the little yacht slewly inland once more, when suddenly the string suspped, and, hefore he could realize what had happened a blg wave and a strong breeze had carried the Saucy Polly far beyond reach.

"Oh, Harold," erled Jack, "It's gono, our dear little boat! Whatever shall his hig head a knowing shake, as much as to sny. "I know quite well what to do; and, what's more, I'm going to do Then with another deep, reassuring "Itow-wow!" he plunged into the sea and was soon swimming in hot pursuit of the Saucy Polly

The children watched with breath less interest as they saw the dog reach the boat, selze it, and then turn and began to swim quickly back to the shore. How they cheered and encour aged him; and when at last the boat was laid safely at their feel they simply fell on his neck and bugged him, all heedless of his drigging coal and of the shower baths which he shook over them.

And this was not the only occasion during that holiday in which Rover provol Huself a gallout resour One day a little girl was idsying on the rocks when she suddenly sliped and fell into deep water, and the brave dog, almost before anyone had realized the accident awam to the child a rescue and brought her safely to shore, very little the worse for her

It is a polsonons weed, particularly dangerous to children in the spring of the year, who may chance upon the roots, and also dangerons to live stock, says Farm Life. Hence It should not be telerated a minute on any farm. It is not worth while to cut this weed down. It should be dug up by the roots, and the roots cared for In such a way that there is no danger of either children or live stock getting hold of them. A few hours' work will clean up any farm that is infested with this weed, and it should be done without delay.

CORN SMUT.

Prnf. A. M. Teneyck Explains Why It Is Useless to Treat the Seed.

Smut In corn it not reproduced from year to year toy spores which adhere to the corn kernels, as is the case with sportida, which are brought in con-correct. tact with the young growing parts of duce new infections, causing a second ure at all times. growth sad fruitage of the fungus. It appears that bruisea on the stalks, such as occur by detasseling, favor the Infection with smut.

You will thus see that it is useless to treat the seed. There is practically no remedy for this disease other than to pick the smut balls and burn them, and this will not prevent the occurence of smnt in any field, since the spores may be carried by the wind from surrounding fields. However, It may be possible to reduce the attucks of smut to some extent by picking and burning the smut balls, aince if little sinut la present in the soil where the corn is planted the opportunity for infection is lessened. It is stated, sino, that manne favors the development of amut, since it offers an abundance of favorable material noon which the smut may grow and develop the sporidla which cause the first infection of the corn plants,

THE SPARROW PEST.

The Farm Journal Tells of Peter Tumble Dnwn's Way of Dealing With it,

There are various ways of dealing with the sparrow pest, some good, some bad, but Peter's way is at least very unique and quite effective. Last fall he dilly dailled with corn husking until caught by a hig snow storm. This was soon followed by a thaw and then a freeze up, so that half of the crop was left out all winter for crow balt. The crows took advantage of the situation and spent the winter in the orchards and wonds near-by, taking hreakfast, dinner and supper at hottem I used board strips three inch-Peter's expense and inviting all their relations to the feast. Thus coming to feel at home in the neighborhood, In the apring many of them set up honsekeeping and began to raise fam-Illes. Peter had to replant twice and some of the neighbors four times. That's not all: the little baby spondent in Prairie Farmer, I can fill crows seemed to need a meat diet, and sacks as fast as one man can tie them. to supply this want, all the nests of other birds, including sparrows, were rlifed by the parent crows; and thus the sparrow pest was conquered for don't forget to see that the gutters once. Of course the plan was hard and leaders of the house or harn are on the song birds, for the crows did clesr. FRUITING OF CUCUMBERS.

Why it is That Often but Little Fruit Sets on the Vines.

Not a few people are puzzled by the behavior of cuenmber vines in tho gardens and complain that although the vines are blossoming full, little or no fruit sets. A number of inquiries of this nature have piready been received at the Colorado Agricultural college experiment station this year.

The reason for this, writes W. Paddock, is as follows: There are two kinds of blossoms upon the eucumber vines, as well as upon a number on many farms in the west may be of other plunta of similar nature. The found it weed from two to five feet first blossom to set, and by far the high, with an numbrella-like blossom most numerous throughout the life of and with the stems streaked with pur- the plant, are what are known as ple. This is the spotted cowbane or male flowers. These are imperfect water hemiock, sometimes mistakenly in their makeup, for the reason that called wild parsnip. On examining they lack the pistil, or that part from the roots there will be found a number | which the fruit and seed are formed, of tubers close together, some of them but it bears an abundance of pollen similar in shape to a cow's horn. Au which is necessary to the development of the pistll of the pistillate flowers.

The other, or pistiliate flowers sometimes called the female blossoms are produced inter in the season and are also imperfect, for the reason that they namily lack staniens, but are provided with a pistil. The pistiliato flowers can readily be told, because there is a miniature encumber at its base, even before the bud has opened.

New, in order to produce fruit, it is necessary for polien from the staminate blossoms to be transferred to the pistil of the other class of flowers When grown in the green house, the work of pollination must be done hy hand, but out of doors, there are al ways insect visitors enough to per form this important work. In fact, this is one of nature's provisiona by which cross-fertilization of plants is effected. Insecta of many and various kinds visit from blossom te blossom and as they go to the staminate flow ers their bodies become dusted with the pollen; then as they chance to visit a pistiliste flower, some of the pollen le bound to be left upon the receptive surface of the pistil. This in plants is known as politination.

The polien grains have the power of germination much like a grain of The end of the pistil is moist so that the grains soon terminate and the germ tube finds its way down through the platif to the lmma ture seed which it enters and gives up a portion of its protoplasm. This process is known as fertilization.

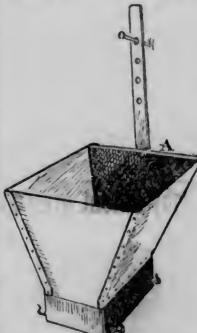

As a rule it may be stated that no fruit of any kind can be produced without this process of pollination and fertilization. Fertilization incites the limiture seeds into growth, and this, of course, causes the parts which surround them, as in the case wheat and other small grains. The of cucumbers, to grow, and the result corn plant is intected with smot above in what we recognize as the matured the ground by means of spores or fruit, which in this case is not strictly

And God always does and slwsys commands only what is right. Hut how could it be right for one nation to drive snother from their homes and destroy them?

Distinguish between a command of God to de a thing and the way somo people execute the command. Illstory abounds in good things done in a wicked way. We can suprove of the doing, while condemning the way it

The plan of the attack was for all the men of war (v. 3) to insuch around the city ence a day for six days, and on the seventh day to march around It seven times, the last time with a long blast of the trumpets and a great drink." shout from all tho men when the walls were to fall.

From the whole account we learn the order of procession. From whatever different sources the present account may have been drawn, the story is one harmonious statement of the facts. The order of murch seems to have been as fellows:

First. A vanguard of armed men who marched in sllence at the head of the procession (vs. 9, 10). They were to utter no valugiorious speeches -such as Gollath did when he met David, and De Hohun at Bannockburn -to give no suswer to the taunts which the men on the walls may have thrown at theni. It was an omlnous, portentona silence "as deep as etor nity," "silence that oppresses with too great a weight," the silence in the center of the cyclone before it bursts forth in its esreer of devastation.

Second. Vs. 8, 13. Then followed company of seven priests, doubtless in their rich, priestly garments, showing to the Jericho people on the walls thut what they were doing was in the service and with the power of Jehovah, who had made a path for the Israelites through Jordan. These were blowing "trumpets of rams" horns," the jubilee trumpets, the kind that ushered in the new year they. jublice tlar, 25.9). These were like the bands which lead processions in able healing remedy.

Third. Alter these came the Ark of the Covenant borne by priests, the Ark which stood in the river-hed while the people were crossing, the Ark whiteh showed that the Lord God was leading and defending them, but on condition that the Isrnelltes kept their part of the covenant.

Fourth. After these came the (v. t3) "recward," i. e., resr gnard, consisting of the rest of the men of israel marching in slience around the ed by the ordinary veterinarism and city. No sign of trinmph was to be raised, no words of rejoicing over the or groom, is "floating" or filing the foe, nor of conscious strength. But teeth which become worn down on in alleinn, reverent stience, as if God one side and leave the higher side nione was speaking to them, in mediistion and silent prayer they were to never hear anything about filling the move around the city,

For Six Successive Days .- V. 14. Sabbath; but it was a solemn, re- nerve exposed!" ligious service, and no more broke the Sabbath than does the marching horse's misbehavlor, adds the Rider of the Salvation Army to draw men and Driver, aside from his "had temto their meetings.

The Seventh Day .- Va. 15, 16, 20. On this day the circuit was made neven times in succession. At the seventh time, while the men were still somewhere sround the city walla, but probably not wholly surrounding the city, the signal was given as announced (v. 5) by a long blast of the trumpets, different from the marching music, and all the men (v. 20) "shouted with a great shout."

The orientals take a peculiar delight In noise. "When our people are in dead earnest, they are generally sllent; but the more in earnest an orlental is, the louder he shouts. Even Arub boatmen, when la grest danger, and every man is doing his utmost in struggling with the waves, will waste a lot of strength and breath in shoutlng."-Ilon. Selah Merrill.

Mud seems to be the latest cemmodity which has been cornered. The monopolist is the well-known Bohemlan watering place Franzenbad, whose wonderful healing mud hntha are famous throughout the world. The news of Franzenbad'a husiness enterprise has just become known in the course of a lawsuit at Eger hetween the Saxon government and the munlelpallty of Franzenbad.

Sexony has a watering place also with mud baths, Bad Elster. Some tlme ago liad Elster entered into negotlstlens to buy a large area of ground containing mineral mud deposltes near Franzenbad.

When the Hohemlan town heard what was going on they promptly decided to head off their Saxon rivals and stepped in and bought up the land themselves. The Saxons were greatly aggrieved and carried the matter lato the Bohemian courts, which declded against them.

During the trial it was stated that although Franzenbad already sessed an luexhaustible supply of this preclous mud the town had spent more than a million crowns in buying up all the mud lands in the surrounding 23.24) and announced the year of country in order to secure exclusive possession for all time of this valu-

Expenses, Regulations, Opening Days.

Berea College is not a money-making institution. All the money recelved from atudents is paid out for their benefit, and the School expends on an average upon each student about fifty dollars a year more than he pays in. This great deficit is made up by the gifts of Christian and patriotic people who are supporting Berea in order that it may train young men and women for lives of usefulness.

OUR SCHOOL IS LIKE A FAMILY, with careful regulations to proteot the character and reputation of the young people. Our students come from the best families and are earnest to do well and improve. For any who may be sick the College provides doctor and nurss without extra charge. All except those with parents to Beres live to College hulldings, and assist in work of boarding hall, farm and shops, receiving valuable training, and getting pay according to the value of their labor. Except in winter it is expected that all will have a chance to earn as much as 35 cents a week. Some who need to earn more may, by writing to the Secretary before coming, secure extra employment so as to earn from 50 cents ons dollar a week.

PERSONAL EXPENSES for clothing, laundry, postage, books, etc., vary with different people. Berea favers plain clothing. Our citmate is the hest, hut as students must attend classes regardless of the weather, warm wrsps and underclothing, umhrelias and overshoes, are necessary. The Co-nperative Stars furnishes books, toilet articles, work uniforms, umbreiles and other necessary articles at cost.

LIVING EXPENSES are really below cost. The College asks no rent for the fine buildings in which students live, charging only enough room rent to pay for cleaning, repairs, fuel, lights, and washing of bedding and towels. For table board, without coffes or sxtras, $1.35 a week in the fall, and $1.50 in winter. For room, furnished, fuel, lights, washing of bedding, 40 cents a week in fall and spring, 50 cents in winter.

SCHOOL FEES are two. First a "Dnlist Deposit," as guarantee for return of room key, library books, etc. This is paid but once, and is returned when the student departs.

Second an "incidental Fee" to help on expenses for care of school buildlngs, hospital library, etc. (Students pay nothing for tuition or services of teachers-all our instruction is a free gift). The incidental fee for most students is $5.00 a term ($400 in lower Model Schools, $6.00 in courses with Latin, and $7.00 in Collegiate courses).

PAYMENT MUST BE IN ADVANCE, incidental fee and room rent hy the term, hoard by the half term. Installments are as follows:

FALL-14 weeks, $29.50,-in one payment, $29.00. Installment plan: first day $21.05, including $1.00 deposit), middle of

Problems of the District School. By Prof. Dinsmore.

Part 4.—The School in Progress.

7. Rhetorical Exercises—Reader, does the idea of rhetoricals dampen your ardor? Does it present to your mental vision the picture of a teacher with a scowling and determined face and pupils in various stages of distress from tears to open rebelhou? In many cases where rhetoricals are undertaken such a picture would not be overdrawn. A large LAW THE SAME AS percentage of teachers make no effort to have such exercises considering the trouble greater thun the value received. Others relieve their con sciences by having little pieces recited on Fridny afternoons and ealling it rhetoricals. A few there are who take it up with cuthusiasm and Says Louislans Violated National would have it, had the ball, and soon carry it thru to the pleasure and profit of all concerned. What is the trouble on the one hand and the secret of success on the other?

The trouble frequently lies in a wrong beginning. Pupils without a particle of preparation or training are told to write a composition. The very word is like a thunder-stroke to them. They have no idea what is wanted and are helplessly at sea. They cannot think of anything to write about and can see no sense in it anyway.

The fact is the teacher who starts in such a way is making a bad beginning. He is trying to drive the wedge from the wrong end. Children will take great delight in writing compositions if they are started properly. They must begin at the beginning as they would arithmetic or grainmar and make progress by easy stages. Little ones should be taught to make single sentences about familiar objects and to write these sentences. spect, the state does not differ, in but time was called and they went This is composition work. It should be a daily exercise thru the first law, from an individual. years of school life until enough skill has been acquired so that the child can express his thoughts as easily in writing as in speaking. When this stage has been reached he may have it less frequently tho not less regularly nor less certainly.

If children well along in other matters have not been taught to express their thoughts in writing no time should be lost until they have learned it. No part of their education is more valuable. Like the little ones they must begin at the beginning. Suppose a boy ten or twelve States. The investigation developed disappointed as the College was in years old is bright enough in reading, spelling and arithmetic but knows the facts that his passage money had the first, as they were driving the nothing about writing his own thoughts. His first lesson may be some-been paid by Reginald Dykers, nu College boys towards the goal pretty thing like this: You say to him, "Juck, what do you know about pocketknives?" Jack replies, "O, I know they are a mighty good thing to have. If you have a pocket knife you can peel a turnip or cut a watermelon or funds regularly make things." "Now write it out, please." Perhaps with some demuring *k writes it out. You read it over und say "that is a very good compo sition. Jack says, "why teacher that's is no composition, that's nothing You say, "well write some more to it." "But I do not know anymore to write." "Are all knives atike," you ask? No, some are large and some are small. Some have only one blade while others have three or four. Havana to New Orl ans. No employer Powers, halfs of the College Seven. I Some are cheap and of poor quality while others cost considerable and are better." "Well, Jack, you appear to be well posted about knives, free to work for whom he pleased. Please add that to what you have written.'

With less reluctance than ever before he proceeds to write it out. When it is done you again approve it and tell him if he will practice a lit tle while every day he will by and by be able to write anything he wants

Jack feels proud to think he has done something new that meets the approval of his teacher and will be glid to exercise his newly discovered ders. The cale was referred to the depowers again. Henceforth all he needs is intelligent direction with the occasional stimulus of praise or blame for good or bad efforts.

Beginners must always be told what to write about with enough directions to keep them from being stalled or discouraged.

The older pupils from the Fourth Reader up may have rhetericals once a fortnight, reaching their compositions before the school. Their productions should be read by the leacher, the mistakes marked and the whole copied neatly with the mistakes corrected before it is allowed to be read in public. The efforts of beginners should not be criticised at all. A child may stagger all he pleases while he is learning to walk.

The teacher must be ready to suggest subjects avoiding such abstract themes as "Honesty is the best Policy," "The Importance of Habit," and "Virtue is its own Reward." The object is not to bring forth mature wis dom on deep subjects but to teach children to think about the things to immigration shall not be treated kind of grain, said farm has upon it around them and to express their thoughts in writing. They should be as coming under promise of employe a good residence of eight rooms, good allowed to write about the things that are interesting to them, that touch ment, there is no exception in favor barn, corn crib, buggy house, ment their every day life, such as, How Mother gets Dinner, or, How Futher of a state in reference to specific and chicken house, with an everlasting promises of employment to individual wall at the door, and is well watered. shears the Sheep, and such like topics including all the common occupations about the house and farm. They may write about their own doings and farm. They may write about their own doings and last the door, and is well at the door. and the things that interest them.

At an early stage they may write imaginary compositions about animals, travels, what they will do when they are grown and the like. They must be made to understand clearly the difference between imagination and reality. Such work as the above they will thoroly enjoy and it will as an inducement to his immigration at the farm, Mr. Pope, who fives on result greatly to their advantage.

THE FARM

"Farming For The Future."

How many times do we see farmers who live and act as if this were going to be the very last year of their life? We see on every hand men who are planning for the future, and true it is, that these are the men who are doing the world's work.

But when we come to the farm, we can not but admit that a large per cent of our farmers are planning for but one year at a time. If a farmer can raise enough corn to supply his family on half of his land why should he allow the other half to stand idle. We should arrange our crops so that something useful will be growing on all the land all the time, if not, weeds are sure to grow and they are just as hard on the soil as many of our lighter crops, such as grass.

sion on the same ground we not only loose the soil fertility used up by the least a portion of your account with ERS, SAW MILLS, corn, but a far larger per cent is washed away into our streams. This us, whether large or small. condition should not exist to the extent which it now does. By growing more grass, fruit and other crops that do not need to be cultivated during the season of hard rains we can save fifty per cent of the soil fertility which is now being wasted.

We should not only consider the profit in a crop for the present year, HYDEN but we should seek to preserve the wonderful inheritance which God has given to us in the soil. You may not be able to hand down a fortune to your children, which perhaps is a blessing to them, but you can give them a farm which is better than it was when you received it. You can make the soil richer, build up the fences, set out orchards, straighten out and grade up the roads, build up the ont buildings, keep down the weeds, preserve the coal and forests, and more than all make the home more attractive. All this has been done and can be done during the hours which the majority of our farmers spend in loafing about.

Are you living for today, or for the good you can do to those whom you love? Surely it takes a man with a big heart to live for the future, but that is the kind of men Kentucky produces. Last semmer I saw an old man almost eighty years old setting out fruit trees. I asked him why such an old man was working so hard to grow fruit which, he would never enjoy? It would have done you good to have seen his keen eyes brighten and the kinks straighten from his back when he repeated with a smile, "No, I may never eat the fruit but there are my little grand-children and it will do them good."

May not every reader take this lesson home and spend more time in making that old farm attractive as well as profitable.

New York .- An omnibus contract, whereby the Standard Oli company obtains from every steamship company operating between New York and all ports in Africa a rate for the shipment of inbricating oil that is about one half what its competitor, the New York Lubricating enmpany, pays, was produced Friday in the hearing of the federal suit against the alleged oil combine.

This contract was placed in evidence and Philip Harrison, a manager and invoice which all railroads paid of the New York Lubricating Oil company, declared that his company was forced to pay double the Standard rate, notwithstanding his protest to the steamship companies.

Mr ilarrison said that by reason of the freight discrimination the Standard could place its products in Africa at less than the cost price of the otis of his own company, and that to maintain African trade the New York Lubricating Oil company was forced to purchase from the Standard the cheaper grade of oils which it sold to its customers.

The witness decisied that he wrote a letter to the steamship agenta demanding equitable rates for the company, but no change was made

PRICES CHARGED BY GALENA COMPANY NOT UNIFORM.

Refund Over Maximum - Pennsyl vania Road Bought Lubricating Oli st Less Than Cost.

New York .- That the Galena Signal Oil company, a subsidiary of the Standard Off company, controls 97 per cent, of the lubricating oil business with the railroads of the United States and that the prices for its products are not uniform with all railroads was written in the record of Thursday's bearing of the federal suit agulast the so-called oil trust.

C. t'. Steinbreaner, sn secountant for the Galena company, told in detail how contracts were made with railroads whereby they were guaranteed a muximum cost for the inbrication of the rnad, based on mileage for engines and cars, and when the maximum cost was found at the end of certain periods to fall short of the standwhen they received the oil, the Gulena company made a refund of the differencr.

From statements compiled from the tialcaa company books, Mr. Keilogg was able to show that in some cases the amount of the refund was nearly 50 per cent, of the invoice price. Mr Steinbrenner testified that the fibricating oil furnished to the Pennsylvapla rallway was sold at a loss.

One of the railroads that the Gaiens company did not supply with oil, Mr. Steinbrenner said, was the Tidewater railway, owned by Henry H. itogers, vice president of the Standard Oil company. The witness said the Gaiona company had tried to obtain the comract with the Tidewater railway, but failed Mr Kellogg suggested that perhaps Mr. Hogers thought he could ket better oll elsewhere.
